

Dr. Gerhard N. Schrauzer

Scientific Advisory Board Member

BOARD MEMBER PROFILE

Dr. Schrauzer is a Professor Emeritus at the University of California San Diego where he taught and researched from 1966 until his retirement in 1994. In 1994, Dr. Schrauzer founded the San Diego-based Biological Trace Element Research Institute, which he presently directs. Dr. Schrauzer is internationally known and recognized for his work on the biological functions of vitamins and nutritionally essential trace elements, notably Selenium, and for his work on Cancer Prevention.

Dr. Schrauzer has published more than 300 papers and reviews in National and International Journals, authored or edited four books and holds several patents.

Dr. Schrauzer's professional memberships include, the American Chemical Society, the American Association for Cancer Research, the American Institute of Nutrition, the American College of Toxicology and Association of Clinical Scientists. He is also a Fellow of the American College of Nutrition (FACN), a Certified Nutrition Specialist (CNS) and a Life-Member of the American Board of Forensic Examiners.

Helping You Live Younger Longer!

